Read the text and answer the questions

Are you stressed at work? Are you doing anything about it? You should. And your boss should help you. A stressed employee usually makes mistakes, and mistakes cost money. So, here is our advice:

Take a break! Stress causes mistakes. A break really helps you to relax.

Don't miss lunch! A hungry person doesn't think clearly! And a nice meal doesn't take much time.

Listen to music ! Quiet music usually relaxes your body and mind. Loud music doesn't always help.

Laugh! It makes you feel better. Read a funny story or chat with a colleague, then go back to work.

Try these suggestions next time you are stressed and you feel better.

Aerobic exercise can help you lose weight. It can help you stay at a heathy weight. Aerobic exercise burns calories. A calorie is a unit of measurement . It measures the amount of energy in foods. It measures the amount of energy your body uses. When you take in the same number of calories that you burn every day, your weight stays the same. If you take in more calories than you burn, you gain weight. If you take in fewer calories than you burn, you lose weight. Regular exercise helps you burn calories. Strength training may also help with weight control. Lifting weights burns calories. Lifting weights also makes more muscle in your body. Muscles burn more calories than fat.

Stretching exercises can make your body more flexible. There are stretches for your arms, legs, neck, and trunk. Many people do slow exercises and stretches called yoga to make their bodies more flexible. A physical education teacher can show you how to do stretches. You should do warm-up stretches before you do aerobic or anaerobic exercises. You should do cool-down stretches when you are finished exercising. Warm-up and cool-down stretches can help prevent muscle injuries.

Parents often have dreams for their children's future. They hope their children will have a better life than they had. They dream that their children will do things that they couldn't do. Parents who come to the U.S from foreign countries hope their children will have better education here. They think their children will have more career choices and more successful lives. They make many sacrifices so that their children will have more opportunities. They think their children will remain close to them because of this. Some children understand and appreciate these sacrifices and remain close to their parents. However, other children feel ashamed that their parents are so different from other Americans.

46. Parents often dream of

- A. their children's making a lot of money in the future.
- B. one day seeing their children become famous people.
- C. one day living on their children's money.
- D. a bright future for their children.

47. Parents who come home from U.S from foreign countries hope that

- A. their children will have a lot of careers.
- B. their children become successful directors.
- C. their children will have more opportunities for good education.
- D. their children will make a lot of sacrifices.

48. Parents think their children will remain close to them because.....

- A. they give their children a lot of money.
- B. of the sacrifices
- C. they know their children will be successful in the future.
- D. they are living in a foreign country.

49. The word career in line 5 is closest in meaning to

One of the most urgent environmental problems in the world today is the shortage of clean water. Having clean drinking water is a basic human right. But acid rain, industrial pollution and garbage have made many sources of water undrinkable. Lakes, reservoirs and even entire seas have become vast pools of poison. Lake Baikal in Russia is one of the largest lakes in the world. It contains a rich variety of animals and plants, including 1300 rare species that do not exist anywhere else in the world. But they're being destroyed by massive volumes of industrial effluent which pour into the lake every day. Even where law existed, the government didn't have the power to enforce them. Most industries simply ignore the regulations. The Mediterranean Sea occupies 1% of the world's water surface. But it's the dumping ground for 50% of all marine pollution. Almost 16 countries regularly throw industrial wastes a few miles off shore.

Water is free to everyone. A few years ago, people thought that the supply of clean water in the world was limitless. Today, many water supplies have been ruined by pollution and sewage. Clean water is now scarce, and we're at last beginning to respect this precious source. We should do something now !

36. According to the writer, one environmental problem in the world today is

Read the following passage and choose the best answer for each question.

The problem of the use of our natural resources may be divided into four parts. These deal with trees, soil, water and minerals. In a sense, the first three are closely related, for water is a great destroyer of soil, and trees are its great protectors. Trees need both soil and water to grow. And water, to be of any real use, needs to be kept by soil and trees. Minerals are apart. They exist where they are because of the changing physical nature of the earth. Man has no control over the creation of the minerals, and once a particular supply has been used up, it is gone forever.

Conservation programmes have been instituted by most governments to prevent these four essentials from reckless waste and to start the long process of repairing earlier damage to forests, soil and water supply.

Read the passage carefully and then choose the best answers:

Women in Britain are better off today than they used to be. At the beginning of the 19th century, women seem to have almost no rights at all. They could not vote, or even sign a contract. Their marriages were arranged by their parents. They were once kept at home and if they were allowed to work, they were never given responsible jobs. It is strange to think that, as far as we know, most women were happy with that situation.

Today the position is quite different. Women now can vote and choose their own husbands. In 1970, a law was passed to give them an equal share of property in the case of divorce, and in the same year the Equal Pay Act gave them the right to get equal payment with men for work of equal value.

Despite these changes, there is no doubt that there are still great differences in status between men and women. Many employers seem to ignore the Equal Pay Act. It is also more difficult for a woman to get promotion than a man does.

There is sex distinction in England although it has not been so serious as it was. More and more women go out to work, earn more money, get high positions in the society, and live independently. However, there are two great problems to solve. The first problem is men's attitude. They always think that women are lower in rank and are the weaker sex. We do not know exactly how long it will take them to change their mind. And the other problem which is much more difficult is women's attitude. They should be ready to struggle to change their fate.

41. At the beginning of the 19th century, _____.
 A. British women were better off than today.
 B. Women seemed to have almost no rights at all.
 C. British women had the right to vote.
 D. British women had the right to choose their husbands.
42. The Equal Pay Act was passed in _____.
 A. 1960 B. 1962 C. 1970 D. 1971
43. Which of these following sentences is NOT TRUE?
 A. All the employers in Britain obey the Equal Pay Act.
 B. In 1970, a law was passed to give British women the right to share property equally in the case of divorce.
 C. The Equal Pay Act gave British women the right to get equal payment with men for work of equal value.
 D. Women cannot get promotion as equal as men.
44. What is men's attitude?
 A. They consider women to be equal to them.
 B. They always look up women.
 C. They consider women the stronger sex.
 D. They consider women the weaker sex.
45. What should women do to eliminate sex distinction?
 A. They should suffer with pleasure.
 B. They should struggle to change their fate.
 C. They should earn more money.

Fill in each numbered blank with ONE suitable word:

Nonverbal communication, or "body language", is communication by facial expressions, head or eyes movements, hand signals, and body postures. It can be just as important to understand------(46)---- words are. Misunderstandings- often amusing----- (47)----- sometimes serious- can arise between people from different cultures if they misinterpret nonverbal signals. For example, take the differences in meaning of a gesture-----(48)----- is very common in the United States: a circle made with the thumb and index finger. To an American, it means that everything------(49)----- OK. To Japanese, it means that you are talking ----(50)----- money. In France, it means that something is worthless. Meanwhile in Greece, it is an obscene gesture. Therefore, an American could unknowingly offend a Greek by using that particular hand signal.

III. Read the following passage and then choose the best answer to the questions:

People in cities all over the world shop in supermarkets. Who decides what you buy in the supermarket? Do you decide? Does the supermarket decide? When you enter the supermarket, you see shelves full of food. You walk in the aisles between the shelves. You push a shopping cart and put your food in it. You probably hear soft, slow music as you walk along the aisles. If you hear fast music, you walk quickly. The supermarket plays slow music. You walk slowly and have more time to buy things. Maybe you go to the meat department first. There is some meat on sale, and you want to find it. The manager of the supermarket knows where customers enter the meat department, away from where the customers enter. You have to walk by all the expensive meat before you find the cheaper meat. Maybe you will buy some of the expensive meat instead of meat on sale. Most of the food in supermarkets is very attractive. It all says "Buy me!" to the customers. The supermarket tells you what to buy.

“Where is the university?” is a question many visitors to Cambridge ask, but no one can give them a clear answer, for there is no wall to be found around the university. The university is the city. You can find the classroom buildings, libraries, museums and offices of the university all over the city. And most of its members are the students and teachers or professors of the thirty-one colleges.

Cambridge was an already developing town long before the first students and teachers arrived 800 years ago. It grew up by the river Granta, as the Cam was once called. A bridge was built over the river as early as 875.

In the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries more and more land was used for college buildings. The town grew much faster in the nineteenth century after the opening of the railway in 1845. Cambridge became a city in 1951 and now it has the population of over 100,000. Many young students want to study at Cambridge . Thousands of people from all over the world come to visit the university town. It has become a famous place all around the world.
